He was been awarded as the best ginner at the Cotton Conclave held by Cotton Association of India in October 2019. He is a graduate by qualification and a researcher by profession with his articles being published in international scientific journals.

Cotton has remained the most volatile commodity in the last five years. Since the volatility has remained at its peak, there have risen ethical issues in the bargains between ginners and the buyers, who can either be spinners, traders or exporters and vice-versa. In the last few months, few parties have been reporting the disputes directly on the social media without have a proper verification for the disputes or claims portrayed on the media. The parties in trade should not post directly on the social media platforms such as Whatsapp, Facebook, Twitter etc. The formation of the Dispute Redressal Committee (DRC) by the Maharashtra Cotton Ginners Association (MCGA) has helped the trade by attempting to resolve the claims or disputes and if the settlement is not honoured, then the DRC will officially publish in the media. Hence this initiative will put regulations in place for such unwarranted circulations in the media.

The Maharashtra Cotton Ginners Association (MCGA) which is registered as Cotton Ginners

Welfare Association (CGWA) with registered no. F-25538 (A) has officially formed the Dispute Resolution Committee (DRC) in its meeting held on 27.08.2022 at Aurangabad, in the presence of its board of directors. This committee is a first ever step in our industry where the association has taken the step to resolve the issues between the sellers and buyers based on the model contract published by Cotton Association of India (CAI) which corroboratively follows the Arbitration and By-Laws of CAI. This DRC will be responsible for resolving the reported dispute of the ginners in Maharashtra and the buyers who have purchased cotton bales or cotton seed from the ginners and vice-versa.

The DRC has created a separate and a dedicated communication channel for addressing the issues of dispute in the bargains. The official email id for this dedicated communication channel is: dispute@mahcga.com. The ginners or buyers will send their issues in respect to the goods supplied or received against the bargain which can either be related to quality or payments to this communication channel from their official email id. The claimant will need to send all the required documents such as contract or bargain note, quality testing report, details of communication among the parties and any other details related to the dispute. The DRC will appoint the Dispute Resolution Officer (DRO) and the Dispute Resolution Bench (DRB) which will consist of at least 3 members from different zones to maintain neutrality in approaching the resolution of the disputes. The Dispute Resolution Bench will supervise and instruct the DRO to maintain the communication with the parties till the time dispute is not settled. The operating office for conducting the process of DRC in respect of the disputes will be located at Aurangabad, Maharashtra.

Process to be followed for resolving the dispute among the Parties:

1. The DRO will scrutiny the documents along with the details sent by the claimant to the official email id of DRC.
2. After the scrutiny of documents, the DRO will present the case to the DRB which after understanding the issue shall be responsibility of DRC to instruct the DRO to issue the notices to the parties in dispute.
3. If the dispute is related to quality, in that case the third party agency which will be Wakefield Inspection Services appointed by DRC will send their authorized personnel to the location where supplied goods are located. The appointed Quality Inspector (QI) will draw the samples from the goods in dispute and the same will then be sent to the lab for testing the samples.
4. The lab chosen for testing the samples will be the lab mentioned in the contract made between the seller and buyer, but in case there is no mention, then the default testing lab for testing the sample in question will be nearest CAI Testing Lab.
5. After receipt of the testing results of the drawn samples, the same will then be communicated to both the parties along with deductions mentioned in the contract which will need to be honored by the parties and if it is not followed, then a stringent action will be taken by the association which will make the trade harder for the respective party.
6. If after the action taken by the DRC, the parties do not honor the settlement order given by the DRB, then the parties will be further assisted by the DRC for applying the dispute to arbitration board of CAI. The DRC will further help fast track the filed case and guide the parties in their respective recoveries.

7. If the dispute is related to payments, then the grace period for considering the payment by the payer is fixed at 15 days and if it is not honored within that stipulated time, then DRC will take action after following the defined procedure.
